ETELKA GERSTER.
All About the Madame and the Wonderful Baby.
Pleasant Pastime of a Reporter.

Madame Etelka Gerster was born in Kaschon, Hungary, something like thirty years ago, of good family, and did not, like many primedonne, advance to fame and wealth from a lowly station. She did not intend to be a professional singer at first, but was constrained to adopt the profession because of her magnificent genius. For some years she has been married to Dr. Carlo Gardini, one of the first gentlemen of Italy, and consul-general from the United States, appointed by President Hayes. Dr. Gardini accompanies Madame Gerster on her present tour. They own a splendid villa near Bologna, where they spend five months of every year. The seat embraces twelve large farms, on which are produced everything save tea and coffee. A church where Madame Gerster and her husband, together with all their dependents, worship, is located on the estate.

The most remarkable feature of Madame Gerster's life would be omitted, were no mention made of her little daughter Linda, born about two years ago, after the lady had been singing the opera "Linda." It is estimated that this child has cost Gerster nearly half a million dollars. Linda, it is said, was the cause of the recent episode at Baltimore. Colonel Mapleson had persuaded Madame to leave the baby at New York. At Baltimore the lady heard that Linda had wheezed, and she ran away to New York, leaving husbands and maids behind. Colonel Mapleson followed and brought her back. Madame receives four telegrams every day, giving the condition of her daughter, who, it must be remembered, is healthy and robust. The telegrams run something like this: "Linda is quite well; has had her tea, and is sleeping comfortably."

Linda sings all the operas, and plays on a piano specially manufactured for her, containing two octaves. She is a wonderful child in every respect. Colonel Mapleson once approached her in sport and asked her to appear as one of the children in the opera "Norma."

"What are the terms?" Linda queried.

"Twenty-five cents a performance."

"Oh, I wouldn't go into a contract for less than $5,000 a night," replied the little lady, haughtily.

There was a rumor around the Southern hotel at midnight Saturday that Linda had the stomach ache. Madame Gerster had received no telegram from New York since 8 o'clock. Madame had not yet packed her trunks, and it was doubtful whether she would take the special train for the west or board an east-bound Vandalia special standing at the Union depot, awaiting the "Jalma" party. It was a critical moment for Colonel Mapleson. It had just been arranged that Patti should go to San Francisco, and now he was confronted with the prospective flight of Gerster to New York. Fate favored the colonel, however, and Gerster was soon whirling toward the ocean in a train which had orders to make no long or unnecessary stops.

Madame Gerster is as affable a diva as ever carried a note. A Times reporter who was detailed to accompany the Mapleson party from St. Louis dined with the lady yesterday and spent an hour with her afterwards in her apartment.

"I have never been interviewed," said the lady, smilingly. "What shall I speak of? I must not talk of myself. I can say no thing but good of others, and you probably would not be interested in that."

"Tell me about the Baltimore episode?"

"That is too old now to talk about. Colonel Mapleson and I had a little difference; that is all. No correct account of the true inwardness of it had ever appeared in print. All the articles have been contradictory; so the public believe none of them. I believe I shall let the matter rest as it is."

"I understand that Patti goes west, after all?"

"Does she? I know nothing about it authoritatively. I fancy that she will go west."

"What is your view of the future of opera in America?"

"Grand!" exclaimed Madame Gerster. "There will undoubtedly be two Italian opera companies in the field again next year. The two have come in competition too much this season, resulting in disaster for Mr. Abbey. The country can support two companies, but they should not adopt the suicidal policy of following each other around from place to place. While one is in New York the other should be on the road, and in this way both would be sustained. Colonel Mapleson has had Mr. Abbey at a disadvantage, because the people have confidence in the former and know that he will give what he promises. Mr. Abbey is a comparatively new impressario, but it is due to him to say that he is honest. Whatever difference of opinion may exist concerning other qualities, all who know him admit that he is an honorable manager."

"Madame Gerster chatted pleasantly for an hour in reference to people and things, declaring that she anticipated with much expectancy her first western trip. Madame Gerster is a delightful conversationalist, with a rather attractive foreign accent. She speaks German, Hungarian, Italian, Russian, French and other languages fluently. She has a charming face, which lights up with a kindly expression when she engages in animated conversation. She is rather robust, and apparently enjoys the very best of health. Her manners are quiet but affable, and there is a dignity about her which commands the respect of her associates on the stage that is bestowed on the true women.

Madame Gerster, during the St. Louis season, won hundreds of new admirers, and if she and Patti should visit St. Louis in rival companies in the future, it is altogether likely that the unassuming Hungarian lady would considerably outdraw the grasping spouse of Signor Nicolini.—Kansas City Times, February 25th.

STRONG FACTS!

A great many people are asking what particular troubles BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is good for.

It will cure Heart Disease, Paralysis, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Consumption, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all similar diseases.

Its wonderful curative power is simply because it purifies and enriches the blood, thus beginning at the foundation, and by building up the system, drives out all disease.

A Lady Cured of Rheumatism.

Baltimore, Md., May 7, 1883.
My health was much shattered by Rheumatism when I commenced taking Brown's Iron Bitters, and I scarcely had strength enough to attend to my daily household duties. I am now using the third bottle and I am regaining strength daily, and I cheerfully recommend it to all. I cannot say too much in praise of it. Mrs. MARY E. BRADSHAW, 173 Fremont St.

Kidney Disease Cured.

Christiansburg, Va., 1881.
Suffering from kidney disease from which I could get no relief, I tried Brown's Iron Bitters, which cured me completely. A child of mine, recovering from scarlet fever, had no appetite and did not seem to be able to eat at all. I gave him Iron Bitters with the happiest results. J. KYLE MONTAGUE.

Heart Disease.

Vine St., Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 2, 1881.
After trying different physicians and many remedies for palpitation of the heart without receiving any benefit, I was advised to try Brown's Iron Bitters. I have used two bottles and never found anything that gave me so much relief. Mrs. JAMES HESS.

For the peculiar troubles to which ladies are subject, BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is invaluable. Try it.

Be sure and get the Genuine.

THE LIVER AND ITS FUNCTIONS.

It has become a well established fact that the largest portion of disease to which the human family is subject arises in the first place from some derangement of the Liver. The organ is not only the largest, but at the same time one of the most important. The venous blood, on its return to the heart, passes through the liver, and in its passage the impurities as also the secretions which are necessary for digestion as well as for a cascade to assist in the removal of waste material are eliminated. From this it is seen that the Liver is liable to get out of order to a greater or less extent, and when this occurs it is impossible for it to properly fulfill its office of removing all objectionable matter from the blood, but allows it to pass through, carrying with it the poisons of which it should have been relieved.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS is a medicine of rare merit, and not an intoxicating beverage, and being purely vegetable in its composition can be used at all times with beneficial results. It is not claimed as a cure-all, but for derangements of the organs mentioned, it is a specific, and as a BLOOD PURIFIER ranks above all other preparations. Ask your druggist for it, and give it a fair trial. If it has none on hand, ask that it be ordered for you.
